

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to benzomorpholine derivatives typified by a compound represented by general formula (VIII)

5

or pharmaceutically acceptable salts thereof and platelet aggregation inhibitors comprising the same. The compounds of the present invention have a strong inhibitory effect of platelet aggregation, so that they are effective for treating and preventing diseases in which thrombus is involved.